DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Rojey (5,625,178).

Rojey discloses a process for improving crude oil by preventing the formation of hydrates in the oil. An electromagnetic wave is emitted into the oil to prevent the formation of hydrates. The electromagnetic wave is controlled and monitored to generate signals for commanding the emission so that the emission has small time pauses of variable length and the duration time between the emitted pulses and the duration time between their pauses are either constant or variable time. The wavelength is 12", 6", 3", 1.5", or 0.75" whereas the frequency is from about 1-10 GHz which can be amplitude-modulated by a signal of lower frequency. It is noted that Rojey does not disclose that the potency does not descend below 0.0001 mWatt. However, the Rojey conditions are similar to the claimed conditions. Therefore, it would be expected that the Rojey process would have the potency that does not descend below 0.0001 mWatt as claimed. (See Fig. 1-4; col. 1, lines 32-45; col. 2, line 40 through col. 4, line 21; col. 6, line 44 through col. 9, line 45)

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 12 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rojey (5,625,178).

The process of Rojey is as discussed above.

Rojey does not disclose that the oil product is transported and sent to refineries.

However, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified the process of Rojey by transporting the oil product to refineries because the oil product can be further processed to produce more valuable products such as gasoline.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

The prior art made of record not relied upon discloses oil treating process.
